📈 How the $D10 Bonding Curve works

The $D10 is deployed on Pump.fun platform that employs a "Bonding curve" to calculate token pricing based on supply and demand dynamics. Specifically, it uses a step-based curve where the price of the token increases in predefined increments as more tokens are minted. This model ensures fair and transparent price growth while maintaining balance in the supply-demand relationship under a fixed token supply. One of the most significant advantages of this system is its inherent resistance to rug pulls. Unlike traditional liquidity pool models, where funds can be abruptly withdrawn, the bonding curve locks liquidity directly into the smart contract.

For every buy or sell transaction along the bonding curve, a 1% fee is applied to the total trade amount, paid in SOL. This mechanism not only sustains the platform's economy but also encourages thoughtful participation from users. Upon reaching 100% of the bonding curve, the tokens will be burned, collecting liquidity from the 1% previously collected by traders.

The "King of the Hill" progression system on Pump.fun is designed to incentivize competition and collaboration within the community by highlighting top contributors and token holders. By climbing the ranks, participants can unlock exclusive benefits, gain visibility, and even influence the project's direction.

With Cyborg-D10, we aim to leverage these innovative mechanisms to drive engagement, foster loyalty, and build a thriving ecosystem.
